

THERE IS LIFE AFTER REDUNDANCY!

Margaret See worked at the Bond's factory for thirty two years as a Machinist and was one of many people made redundant when the factory closed down.

Margaret, now fifty five, had left school at fifteen and said that it was really scary to be out of work and feel unable to look elsewhere for work because of her lack of schooling. Northnet came to the rescue and Margaret was enrolled in a Certificate III Aged Care Course.

Initially Margaret picked this course because it was something different and she felt that it would help her look after her elderly Mother. At first she found it rather strange and scary to be "back at school" but she credits some of her success to the support and encouragement of the trainers. "They were fantastic" said Margaret. It was fun learning with a group.

Margaret now works at WestHaven Masonic Hostel; she thoroughly enjoys her work and finds it rewarding interacting with the residents and other staff. So, there is life after redundancy!
